Severe Weather Outlook Saturday, August 25, 2018

Hazardous Weather

Another day of near record level heat will be expected across deep south Texas as most locations top out in the 100s under mostly sunny to partly cloudy skies. Heat indices or "feels like" temperatures will peak between 105 and 110 degrees this afternoon. Hydrate frequently, dress in light weight and colored clothing and remember to take breaks often when outdoors for any extended time. Mariners can expect southeasterly winds with a moderate chop developing on the bay and low gulf seas.

Today will again be hot with maximum heat indices mostly in the 105 to 108 degree range. Be sure to stay hydrated and take breaks from the heat in air conditioned environments if possible.
